'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Life's little tragedies include the works of more than two hours in preparing a clothes line for friend wife—and then to have the darned thing bust when three nice clean sheets are put on the line.

* * * *

If you haven't had a vocabulary before, you acquire one then.

* * * *

Yes, sir, it sure looks like Christmas is coming around. One of the cigar stores on Macdonald avenue has a Christmas tree and cotton snow on the counter.

* * * *

Several drug stores have Christmas cards in the windows. Some of these days we are going to find an original Christmas card some place.

* * * *

A cigarette advertisement features a girl in a white winter outfit and holly and cigarettes and what have you.

* * * *

So far we haven't seen Santa Claus standing in the middle of the street ringing a bell.

* * * *

When we were younger—oh muchly so—we often wondered about Santa Claus and why there were so many of them standing around on street corners.

* * * *

Many persons, especially grown ups, scoff at the Santa Claus myth. But when a child believes in the fable, his Christmas is much happier.

* * * *

You never can tell about children. Last Christmas a certain person spent more than $500 for toys for his youngster. There was everything that a boy could ask.

* * * *

And yet, the child enjoyed a ten cent toy given by a friend more than he did the expensive presents.

Religious Cult To Go To Mexico

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 4.—UP—Plans for wholesale migration of 5000 members of the religious sect of Doukhobors from Canada to Mexico were being made here, H. M. Maple, El Paso real estate broker said today.

SIX MADMEN TERRORIZE NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—UP—Six maniacs, including an acid killer and a man known as the "mad butcher" who escaped before dawn today from the State hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan, were being sought in the metropolitan maze of New York City tonight.

Led by an under-developed, 21 year old, insane burglar, who with two gunmen invaded the hospital shortly after 4 a. m. The six madmen sped southward from Matteawan in a large automobile

Fifteen miles on the road to New York the car shot into the town of Peekskill, by dodging into a side street and driving the machine at top speed, the maniacs escaped a waiting squad of policemen and the trail was lost.

Escape Death

Two and a half hours later one of the men, Frank Vanderkuylen, who killed his second wife by throwing acid on her, pounded on the door of his first wife's apartment on 'West Forty-third street in Manhattan.

Mrs. Vanderkuylen, who once narrowly escaped death at the hands of her maniac husband, cowered inside the room with her seven-year-old son, Jimmy. She refused to heed his demand that the door be unlocked and, quaking with fear, sat silently in the room with her hand over the child's mouth, lest he cry out suddenly.

Vanderkuylen shouted outside that if the door was not unlocked he would kill somebody, then stamped away.

Man Flees

A short time later he called, with the careless indifference of a madman, at the study of Father Cyril Rosen, at St. Albert's church in West Forty-seventh street. He had been a parishioner of Father Rosen's some years ago.

He walked into the priest's study and calmly announced that he had escaped from Matteawan. He said that he wanted to give himself up to the district attorney.

Father Rosen, deeply agitated, left the room for a moment on the pretex for geting a match to light his pipe. He wanted to think out some course of action to take. When he sepped back into the

ARMY MEDIC TRIAL STARTS

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 4.—UP—Major Charles A. Shepard, eminent Army surgeon, today sat passively in federal court here while a procession of Kansas farmers passed through the jury box where twelve of them will be retained to pronounce him innocent or guilty of murdering his wife.

The opening day's session of the trial was adjourned during the afternoon when the jury panel was exhausted. Additional talesmen will be summoned tomorrow. It was believed the jury would be sworn before the noon recess.

The proceedings today were marked by sharp words directed at Attorney C. L. Kagey by Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins who is presiding. Kagey, as chief of the defense, objected to elimination of all jurors who admitted having read a statement purportedly made by Shepard and printed in newspapers.

In the statement Shepard denied allegations that he showed attentions to Miss Grace Brandon, a San Antonio stenographer, before the death of Mrs. Shepard who he is charged with poisoning.

Judge Hopkins overruled the defense objections in a sharp voice and was adamant on the point when it was raised again by Kagey.

Two Bandits Get $6000 Loot

STOCKTON, Dec. 4.—UP— Two bandits, grumbling because they could not find more money than had been handed to them, escaped from Escalon today and raced thru nearby towns, avoiding arrest after the alarm had been spread.

They held-up three officials and a customer of the Escalon State bank in manner similar to a robbery there two years ago, and obtained $6000. A request was made for more money but the robbers were informed it was impossible and they went to an automobile outside, where a third man was waiting for them.

Ship Searches For Lost Fliers

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Dec. 4.—UP—In an attempt to find a trace of Pilot Robin Renehan's plane, which has been missing since October 28 when Renahan and two companions, Sam Clerf and Frank Hatcher, disappeared enroute north the coast guard cutter Cygan left here today for Vallener bay, on Gravina island.

The search was concentrated on Gravina Island following reports of William S. Folke, 69 year old prospector and homesteader, that one night "about a month or six weeks ago," he heard an airplane flying over the island, and a short time later heard a loud crash.

The Cygan went to the island yesterday, but rough water prevented the landing of a shore party. Storms have prevented two Navy amphibian planes from making a flight over Gravina island. It is believed that no very thorough search of the island could be conducted by air, as it is so heavily timbered.

RESERVOIR AT MARTINEZ INADEQUATE

MARTINEZ, Dec. 4.—The Martinez water system is entirely inadequate to serve the community's need, it was revealed at the council meeting last night when the question of reducing rates for consumers during the summer months wa sintroduced.

The reservoir is not large enough to accommodate the amount of water necessary for the city and the supply tank on top of Thomas hill cannot be filled for fear that the sidewalls and bottom will collapse.

That was admitted during the discussion by Mayor R. E. Claeys and Ben Green, city engineer during questioning. The system when built was not adequate for the city, the officials admitted.

Reports that the reservoir is leaking resulted in test holes being sunk along side the container. If leaks are in evidence the reservoir will be emptied and further investigation made.

E. W. Buxtom was responsible for the question that brought forth the admission of the inadequacy of the water system, when he requested that a reduced charge be made during the summer for all water consumed above a certain number of feet.

SOLONS FACE LONG MEET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 —UP—Congress today dug up new and old issues of controversy which effectively renewed the threat of a legislative jam and a forced extra session of the new congress.

The administration relief program was openly challenged in the House as inadequate, and in the Senate as incapable of preventing starvation. An independent Democratic senator proposed $250,000,000 direct federal relief for sufferers.

At the White House, apparently recognizing this situation, President Julius Barnes of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce after a conference with President Hoover, issued a statement calling on congress in the name of business to avoid "any extended discussion" even of worthy projects—in other words, to keep still.

Asks Silence

Business, Barnes said, welcomes the spirit of aid manifested by congress in the direction of business stimulation and unemployment relief. He added:

"It cannot be said with too much emphasis that the processes of healing which will shorten the business depression are affected unfavorably by uncertainty. Under

Proceeds from the entertainment will go to the aid of the needy this Christmas.

At 7:15 p. m. when the auditorium was opened a large gathering of persons had already formed, and when the curtain went up at 8:15 and participants in the performance were introduced to the spectators by Charles Ryan, a hearty applause echoed through the hall.

The show presented in three acts was set off by the dancing of Matilda Myer's kiddies and the girl chorus trained by her.

Earle M. Caldwell and his staff of four assistants was highly praised for the manner in which they directed the play.

CABINET OF FRANCE FALLS BY 8 VOTES

PARIS, Dec. 4. —UP— Wild scenes marked the overthrow of the Tardieu government on a vote of non-confidence in the senate today, and France tonight was without a government for the 19th time since the close of the World War. The vote was 147 to 139, Tardieu being defeated by a meager 8 votes.

President Gaston Domergue indicated he would begin formal conversations with political leaders in the morning, but it was widely doubted that a new administration could be organized before a week or more had elapsed. Meanwhile the members of the cabinet who resigned formally today will continue to carry on the functions of government, pending the formation of a cabinet to succeed them.

The defeat came just when the position of Premier Andre Tardieu sauve head of the government since he reorganized a cabinet last February, had appeared stronger than at any time in recent months. In the chamber of deputies the government's measure for additional military appropriations totalling $450,000,000 had just been passed.

"The condition in the senate was such that it had to be solved immediately," Tardieu commented. "It was for the best that I put the question of confidence to get an immediate solution. The future is uncertain, I am not ambitious to try again immediately."

Both Aristide Briand, foreign minister in the Tardieu cabinet, and Raymond Poincare, former premier who supported the Tardieu regime, indicated they would not accept if offered the premiership. Poincare, replying to querries, declared emphatically that he would reject such an offer, regardless of all arguments.

Tardieu put the question of confidence as a vote in a simple "order of the day," based on the government's policies. As soon as the result was announced—the defeat by eight votes—the premier and members of his cabinet withdrew to the ministers' salon and started writing their letter of resignation, which was submitted forthwith to president Doumergue by the premier at the Elysee.

The government's overthrow occurred amid tumultuous scenes. The left wing senators sang and cheered as Tardieu, followed by his ministers, filed out of the senate toward the ministers' salon. Friends of the retiring cabinet essayed a feeble cheer.

Poincare told the United Press that he had "voted for the cabinet, and got all of my friends to do the same."

"Regardless of any arguments, I insist I will not accept the premiership," he added. "That is final."

Two Sought In S. F. Stock Fraud

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—UP—Complaint against two persons who sold oil stock in San Francisco, and disappeared before carrying out certain promises, was made to deputies of the district attorney's office here today and it was claimed losses to purchasers of the stock might total $7,000,000.

Charles Seymour, a broker, was among several who appeared at the district attorney's office to ask grand jury action against a man and a woman who sold $250,000 worth of the stock here.

The woman came to San Francisco with a bible in one hand and a bunch of stock in the other, Seymour claimed to Deputy District Attorney John R. Tyrell. Her companion followed a short time later. They made promises that the stock would be transferred to a well-known company on Oct. 10, last, it was said.

Loyola Will Ban Football Next Season

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—UP—Loyola university of Chicago will drop inter-collegiate football from its athletic program, beginning next fall.

This announcement was made today by President Robert M. Kelley, S. J., and was a distinct shock to Loyola's student enrollment of 7,000.

"It is our belief," said Father Kelley, "that the interest and appeal of these spectacular football games are getting away from the colleges and universities and are being centered on the public; or, in other words, the colleges and universities are competing with entertainment agencies for the patronage of the amusement-seeking public."

The decision to abolish football marks a complete reversal in Loyola's attitude toward the sport. The school recently completed a new concret football stadium, seating 12,000 spectators, and was one of the first schools of importance in the middle west to play night football.

STUDEBAKERS WIN IN CAGE CONTEST

The Studebakers prevented the McRacken Clothiers from going into a first place tie with Santa Fe last night by defeating the Clothiers by a score of 23 to 16.

The Ben Malik warriors won their first game of the season last evening by defeating the Mastercraft Roofers 23 to 20.

A last minute attack captured the A division game for the Studebakers last night. The game was remarkably even through all four quarters. McRacken was leading 6 to 5 at the end of the first quarter. The two teams were tied 12 to 12 at half time. Studebakers had gone into a 14 to 13 lead by the conclusion of the third quarter. Neither team was able to gain an appreciable advantage until the last few minutes of play, the score being tied 16 to 16. The Studebakers then launched a formidable shooting attack that completely destroyed McRacken's chances of victory for last night's game. Last night's victory was Studebakers' second win of the season.

Last night's B division game completely rounded out a fast, highly contested basketball program. The Roofers were leading all the way during the first three quarters and seemed to have the game cinched. They were leading 12 to 7 at halftime and 19 to 13 at the end of the third quarter. However, the Ben Malik boys made a strenuous comeback in the final period and made every one of their many foul shots count to put them in a considerably more advantageous position. They went into their final lost margin until the final whistle.

Santa Fe will attempt to hold its narrow margin of one victory in the A division of the city league next Monday night when it tangles with the closely trailing Odd Fellows. The B division game for Monday evening will be played between Garfinkle's Clothiers and the Civic Center Tires.

The members of the Studebakers team last night were: Barton 4, Dyer 4, Muth 9, forwards; Bonham 4, center; Cornell 2, Paasch and Hutton, guards.

The McRacken Clothiers were: Gllan 10, Huzefka 1, Hall, forwards; Milicivich 2, F'lynn, center; Barbieri 3, Lee, McLaughlin, guards.

The Ben Malik squad consisted of: Dolan 5, Damon, Dotson 7, Murdock 4, forwards; Kenny 6, center; Pfeister 1, Goldsworthy, Potts, guards.

The Mastercraft Roofers were: Linstedt 6, Bowman 2, Armstrong, forwards; Duncan, center; Jester 9, Brock 3, [illegible], guards.

NEW YORK IN HUNT FOR 6 MADMEN

study Vanderkuylen was gone.

No Trace Found

Neighbors of Mrs. Vanderkuylen telephoned police some time later that they had seen the madman on the roof of a building nearby. Police scoured the section but could find no trace of him. He, as well as his companions in the escape, was still at large tonight.

The escape itself was cleverly executed with William Nelson, the youthful burglar, commanding the entire operation. Nelson, an incorrigible escaped from Matteawan two weeks ago.

The six men he led from the hospital, in addition to the acid killer, were Harry Gordon, 38, the "mad butcher of Rochester" who believes he has been delegated by God to kill; Anthony 9. Alloy, 44, Brooklyn pyromaniac who is known as "Firebug Al"; Joseph Kaylor, 35 of New York, a pyromaniac; John S. Gambill, 23, of New York, in for assault and John Biggins, 30, of Brooklyn, in for robbery.

Plans Laid

Nelson knew the lay of the land at the big hospital which stands on a hill and a mile and a half outside of Beacon, N. Y. The automobile was parked behind the institution and the mad burglar, accompanied by two unknown gun men, scaled a 12-foot wooden fence which surrounds the place.

Mattewan is a hospital, not a prison. For this reason the guards are not armed, nor is the outer wall impregnable. Climbing the wall was an easy matter and once inside the three men slipped into the shadows of the hospital laundry and waited.

James McGrath, night watchman came along. The three men leaped on him, placed a pistol againt his ribs, took his keys and his watch, and marched him to the hospital kitchen.

Two Held

Inside Clifford Cooper, the night cook, was taken in tow and the two captives were locked into the supervisor's office. The invaders then captured Joseph Brown, another night watchman, and Samuel Cain, night keyman, locking them up with copper and McGrath.

Next the three went to the domitory and held up John Busnell, the attendant. Young Nelson went into the dormitory and called for Diggins and Alloy. It appears likely that the original plan was to rescue only these two and that the four others "crashed" the escape party. Diggins and Alloy had their clothes on beneath the bed covering. The others were in night shirts, covered by overcoats.

As the nine men left the domitory one was heard to suggest that they "bump off" Bushnell, the attendant. The suggestion was vetoed by another, who said: "Nothing doing, he's a married man."

They left the building, scrambled over the back wall and drove away in the car.

Before the speeding automobile reached Peekskill, police there had been notified of the break and were waiting on the main route. The driver of the car, however, turned into a side street. The Peekskill police pursued in a light car but were unable to overtake the larger machine.

Doctor Wants No 'Heroics' After Rescue

MCCALL, IDAHO, Dec. 4.—UP—Earnest request to "leave out the heroics" in reporting his 30 mile trip by dogsled through an Idaho blizzard to a patient's bedside, was made to newspapermen today by Dr. Don S. Numbers, McCall physician.

"I didn't do anything out of the ordinary," Dr. Numbers asserted. "Anybody in McCall would have done the same thing if they could rave been of assistance."

Dr. Numbers returned last night from snowbound Burgdorf, remote settlement in central Idaho. He left his patient, J. D. Monroe, aged mountaineer, well on the way to recovery.

The famous dog team mushing physician set forth Monday night in the midst of the worst snowstorm of the winter.

In the meantime, Monroe, suffering from a serious abdominal malady, was removed on a sled from White Creek to Burgdorf.

The physician discovered the man's condition and age prevented an operation. So he administered a serum to offset poison in the system, checked a threatened hemorrhage and attended his patient until he showed definite signs of improvement.

X-RAY USE IS TOLD AT MEET

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—UP—The physician of today depends upon his eyes as well as his ears in diagnosing disease of the lungs, Dr. Carl E. Koenig, of Seattle, said tonight in outlining the benefits of X-ray before the 16th annual convention of the radiological society of North America.

"For a long time the stethescope was used to listen for unusual sounds in the lungs," he said. "Today disease is shown on x-ray plates by dense shadows.

"X-ray plates indicate the progress of tuberculosis and are valuable as permanent records and for making comparisons of recent x-ray plates with those taken three or six months before.

Use Told

"When tuberculosis of the lungs grows worse the shadows on the plates grow larger or evidence of cavities may appear. If there is improvement the shadows gradually grow smaller, but never disappear entirely, even if the patient regains his health, as scars due to tuberculosis remain throughout life."

Dr. Koenig said that when shadows are seen in the lungs, the physician's first concern should be to learn if they are due to tuberculosis. Shadows caused by pneumonia, which may be mistaken for tuberculosis, disappear in a few weeks and leave no scars.

"Medical authorities know that tuberculosis of the lungs may be present for months and even years before there are definite symptoms," Dr. Koenig continued, "and that an adolescent child may be apparently healthy, physically active and overweight, yet have tuberculosis in a serious form.

Very Valuable

X-ray examination is very valuable in such cases as evidences of tuberculosis are found in x-ray plates in its early stages. When shadows indicating disease are found in repeated x-ray examinations extending over a period of two or three months they are most surely due to tuberculosis as no other disease shows such persistent signs."

In his formal address at the annual banquet tonight, Dr. Robert J. May, of Cleveland, declared that " the medical profession, of which we radiologists are a recognized division, has too long stood on its dignity." He said that the effect of charlatans and quacks should be offset by legitimate physicians through the medium of the press so that the "man of the streets" may have the proper medical knowledge."

New Officers

Dr. Bundy J. Allen, of Tampa, Fla., was installed as president of the society for 1931 and Dr. Francis Carter Wood of New York City took office as president-elect. Dr. Wood will take office in December, 1931.

Other officers installed included Dr. I. S. Trostler, of Chicago, re-elected secretary-treasurer and historian; and three vice presidents, Dr. F. H. Rodenbaugh, of San Francisco, Dr. Harry Podlasky, of Milwaukee and Dr. John S. Reimer of New York. The election occurred today. Friday's sessions will end the six day conference.

BOY TELLS OF SLAYING HIS FATHER

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4.—UP—A ten-year old boy sat quietly in a justice court today and told officers that "if I hadn't killed my father he would have killed mother."

The boy, Estill Wood, Jr., showed little emotion as he told how his father, E. R. Wood, Sr., had come home early today and started a quarrel with his wife that culminated in the fatal shooting.

Mrs. Wood, hysterical after the tragedy, said she had been made unconscious by a blow on the head and did not hear the shot. She said she revived in time to hear her husband gasp, "son, you've shot your daddy."

Wood, a bullet in his neck, was dead when deputy sheriffs arrived. The boy was lying on a bed crying.

"Mother took a rifle and shot over dad's head to frighten him off," he said. "He hit her and knocked her down and she told me to get help. I grabbed the gun and shot dad."

The bullet that ended Wood's life was from one of many rifles he kept in the house. He was widely known as a hunter and had stalked game in every section of Arizona.

The boy and his mother were released after questioning. They will tell their stories at an inquest Saturday.

Shade Draws With Jack Hood

LONDON, Dec. 4. —UP— Dave Shade, California baxer, and Jack Hood of England, fought a ten-round draw in Albert hall here tonight.

The draw verdict came as a surprise to the majority of the spectators as Shade carried the fight to his opponent all the way and seemed winner by a decisive margin.

Twice during he fight the American middleweight staggered Hood with solid left hooks to the jaw.

Chocolate Given Odds To Win Over Bat Battalino

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—UP—Bat Battalino will have a precedent as well as his featherweight championship to defend when he meets Kid Chocolate in a championship bout in Madison Square Garden here on December 12, for the winners in the last four fights held in the garden have been boys of Italian parentage.

The betting however, is ignoring this precedent, and has installed Kid Chocolate as the favorite.

M. W. A. NINE WILL MEET RODEO

The Rodeo nine will oppose the Richmond Modern Woodmen of America next Sunday afternoon in a fast Inter-County Baseball league contest at Rodeo.

Both squads are ranked among the fastest aggregations in the league and should stage a spirited fight at Rodeo this week-end. The Woodmen had a perfect record until last Sunday, when they were defeated 6 to 2 by the Oakland Firemen in a 10 inning battle. Rodeo got off to a poor start but is now doing well in heated league competition.

A game for the benefit of the Sunshine Camp for children will be staged Dec. 14 at First street by the Richmond Woodmen and the Y. M. I. diamond aggregations. The standings of the two teams and the cause for which the game is being played are certain to bring a record crowd to the First street bleachers on the day of this notable local sporting event.

Worm Raising New Occupation

COLUMBUS, Ind.—Fishing worm raising is Charles E. Stevens' occupation at Columbus. He sells the worms to anglers at a rate of about 5 cents a dozen, in tin can lots. Beds of earth, resembling those in hothouses, are used in the production of the worms. Coffee is poured on the rich, soft earth and dish water used for fatening, he said.

Medico Confused In Testimony On Woman's Death

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4.—UP—Dr. Paul B. Cooper, in his testimony today at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Leone Bowles, stabbed to death three weeks ago, and for whose death her husband, Nelson C. Bowles and his alleged paramour, Miss Irma G. Loucks, are charged with first degree murder, said that he "couldn't remember" what he told officials.

Dr. Cooper has told several conflicting stories in regard to Mrs. Bowles' murder.

On November 14, when he was first questioned by officials, Dr. Cooper made a minute statement, giving the time he called for an ambulance, the time for Mrs. Bowles' death, and the time of several other important occurrences.

On November 19, Dr. Cooper made a confession, in which he admitted that he had "deliberately made a mis-statement" in connection with the time of Mrs. Bowles' death. He also changed the time of several other happenings.

1980 ROMANCE NOW SHOWING AT FOX

Famous writers and scientists, down through the ages, have looked far off into space and regarded the great planet Mars with speculative eyes. Of all the great planets of the universe, Mars is the closest to the earth and thus easiest to study through the powerful telescopes.

Many writers, encouraged by the belief of some astronomers that Mars is inhabited, have given free rein to their imaginations and written at great length of the race which inhabits that planet.

Jules Verne, H. G. Wells and Edgar Rice Burroughs, perhaps, are the best known men of letters who have used Mars as a setting for their fantastic fiction.

Various writers have pictured the Martians in many different ways. Many have given them large heads and small bodies, other have given them peculiar fish - like shapes on the theory that the atmosphere of the planet is very rare and consequently their breathing apparatus must vary greatly from ours and resemble that of creatures that we know.

In "Just Imagine" great DeSylva, Brown and Henderson Fox movietone musical comedy, successor to "Sunny Side Up" Mars supplies the background, for the first time in pictures, for some of the most important sequences of the production.

Mars, as imagined by this great combination of authors and song writers, differs from the conceptions of Verne and Wells and Burroughs in many important details.

They have pictured the Martians as an exotic race of people, ruled over by a beautiful and voluptuous queen, with giant slaves always at hand to do their bidding. From this fundamental conception they develop situations glowing with imagination.

A great cast is assembled in "Just Imagine," which is to be seen and heard at the Fox-California Theater for last times today. It includes El Brendel, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, Marjorie White, Frank Albertson, Kenneth Thompson, Hobart Bosworth, Joyzelle, Mischa Auer, Wilfred Lucas, Sidney DeGray and Ivan Linow. Seymour Felix created and staged the dance numbers. He performed similarly for "Sunny Side Up."

How Old Are You?

Gloriously Alive At 45

My Friends: Correct Your Eating Faults and Lose Your Fat With Kruschen Salts

Yes I am forty-five today—built like a race horse, my friends say—and I know I feel 10 years younger than I did three months ago—and I'd hate to tell you how much fat I lost with Kruschen.

I call Kruschen Salts the "magic salts" because when I was fat and wretched, despondent and half sick all the time—it took only one bottle that I bought for 85 cents at La Moine Drug Co. to liven me up—put ambition and energy into me—make me feel years younger and with the help of a change in diet show me how to lose the fat I was so ashamed of.

Cut out pastries and desserts—go easy on potatoes, cream cheese, and butter—eat lean meat, chicken fish, vegetables and fruits and never fail to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

Every drug store worthy of the name in the World sells Kruschen Salts—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—not much to pay for buoyant heath.

NEW PICTURE TO BE SHOWN AT THE FOX

Novelty—always at a premium in motion picture stories—is reported to figure prominently in William Haines' latest talking vihicle, "Remote Control," scheduled to open tomorrow at the Fox-California Theater.

The unusual aspect of this film centers about the fact that it takes movie audiences "behind the scenes" of a radio broadcasting station, introducing them to the little-known technicalities of "ether" performances and revealing to them at first hand just what occurs when Graham McNamee, Amos 'n' Andy and other "wavelength" celebrities step up to the microphone to speak to the ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience.

It seems that sound exigencies required construction of a complete protable radio station for the major scenes, the effect of the familiar radio reception being impossible to achieve by artificial methods. Radio experts were thus employed in the construction of a station humorously branded "Station M-G-M" over which Haines made what is undoubtedly the shortest broadcast in the history of radiodom, being confined to the twenty-foot distance between the station and the talkie stage on which the action took place.

The profitable angle of this procedure in the way of furnishing Haines with laugh material was the opportunity given him to reveal a few new tricks of the comic trade by way of imitations of radio celebrities and it is reported that the star took full advantage of the situation, giving riotous impersonations of a wide variety of performers from the bedtime story man down.

MERCY SLAYER FREED BY JURY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—UP—A jury of nine women and three men today returned a verdict acquitting Mrs. Ruth B. Weimer of a charge of murdering the sister she admitted killing out of mercy.

Only one defense was offered the trial. Mrs. Weimer said repeatedly: "I did it to end her suffering."

The shooting occurred on September 14. The sister, Mrs. Ma Steele, twice incarcerated in asylum, had been cared for almost since childhood by Mrs. Weimer who, in addition to her duties a housewife, worked long hours i business.

Mrs. Steele separated from her husband. In some manner not explained in the trial, Steele spirited away their two children. Mrs. Steele, already mentally ill, grieved and in a fit of weeping cried out: "I wish I were dead."

Mrs. Weimer went out of the room, returned and shot her sister to death.

She took her acquittal today with stoical calm that was in such contrast to her hysteria during the trial. Relatives and friends congratulated her. During many of the 19 hours of deliberation her husband, J. H. Weimer, sat nervously in the courtroom. It was learned after the jury was dismissed that while the state has asked for a murder verdict without hanging, that the jurors had at no time voted on a murder verdict.

Rail Man Lauds State Train Law

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4.—UP—Testimony favoring operation of trains through Arizona, as provided by state laws, was introduced today by A. Young of Needles, in the hearing contesting constitutionality of Arizona's train limit law.

Young, a Santa Fe passenger conductor, contended that operation of 14 car passenger and 70 car freight trains, as specified by the state law, speeded up operation and aided in proper handling trains.

The Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads contend in the suit against Attorney General Berry Peterson that trains of these lengths entail a great financial loss because of the necessity to split the trains at the Arizona border in order to comply with the statutes.

EXTRA CONGRESSIONAL SESSION PREDICTED AT U. S. CAPITAL

these conditions it is to be hoped that no extended discussion of measures which may be worthy in themselves should be allowed to create delay and discussion of an extra session at this sensitive time."

World court advocates made an unsuccessful attempt to get court oppenents to agree to postpone action for a year on the protocol which President Hoover is expected to send to the senate next week, any attempt to stem debate is unlikely of success if the pro-court majority is unable to bottle it up in the foreign relations committee, the chairman of which, Senator William E. Borah, Repn., Idaho, indicates he will seek early action.

Probe Asked

Senator George W. Norris, Repn. Nebr., the leader of the western independent bloc, charged in the senate that steel companies violated the anti-trust laws by their "concerted" $1 a ton price increase. He called on Attorney-General Mitchell to prosecute, and denounced the companies for increasing prices at a time when attempts are made to increase and stimulate private and public construction, railroad and utility expansion, and other uses of steel.

The senate knocked off its calendar the long debated Couzens-Parker bill for regulation of buses in interstate commerce, by recommiting it to the interstate commerce committee, 51 to 29, over the protest of Chairman Couzens. He charged railroads with lobbying to kill the bill.

Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, Dem., Tenn., joined the issue definitely against the administration depression relief program by introducing a bill for a $290,000,000 appropriation to be spent for direct relief through country commissioners, the money to be taken from foreign debt payments and financed by short-term treasury notes. President Hoover has repeatedly said relief should be carried out by private agencies and the government should finance only public works and rehabilitation loans.

Monday Meeting

The Republican leaders adjourned the body until Monday, when a proposal by Senator Wesley L. Jones, Repn., Wash., for renewing the federal material-aid provisions of the lapsed Sheppard-Towner bill will come up.

The house plugged away at general debate, the consideration of the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill being ostensibly under consideration. House leaders expected to pass the billion dollar measure by tomorrow night.

In the house agriculture committee, a wide rift between the democratic leaders and the Republicans on the relief program broke out, with all sides apparently forgetting the mutual cooperation promised following the post-election statement of the seven Democratic leaders.

Drought Aid

Rep. James B. Aswell, Dem., La., who introduced a $60,000,000 special drought relief farm loan bill under the impression it was approved by the administration, told the committee that Republican substitution of a $25,000,000 measure was the crookedest, cheapest, political peanut trick that has ever been trust into my face." He said Hoover and Agriculture Secretary Hyde both indicated they approved his bill.

Formal approval by the budget commission of the president's request for the $150,000,000 public works appropriation, to be expended by a cabinet committee, was communicated to congress as Senator Jones introduced a bill to appropriate the money A similar bill has already been introduced in the house, and this project ha\ drawn a lot of criticism from senators and representatives who resent the suggestion that a cabinet committee could spend money better than congress.

The senate naval affairs committee voted a favorable report on a $30,000,000 bill for modernization of the battleships Mississippi, New Mexico and Idaho. A similar bill is pending in the house.

Nomination of William N. Doak to be secretary of labor was reported favorably to the senate by the education and labor committee.

BRITISH FACE INDUSTRIAL CRISIS

LONDON, Dec. 4.—UP—The Labor government faced a crisis today in the problem of maintaining industrial peace in Great Britain through the coming winter.

The key to peace between the workers and companies lay in the decisions to be made at a conference of the Miners' Federation, which will take up the question of settlement of the strike of some 75,000 coal miners in Scotland and the threatened strike of many thousands of other miners in England and Wales.

2,000,000 Involved

Although confidence was expressed that a national strike will be avoided, the session will exert great influence on the labor disputes in other trades involving more than 2,000,000 persons. Even among those confident of success, it was admitted that the government, which has intervened, may be forced to put pressure on the miners to achieve a settlement and prevent the threatened spread of strikes to the railroad workers and weavers.

The conference was faced with two important decisions:

First, whether to reverse its veto, given last week, of the so-called "spread-over" system of working hours for miners, which the employers have demanded. The workers claim it violates the law limiting working hours to seven and one-half daily.

Second, whether to vote a nationwide strike in sympathy with the Scottish miners.

The veto of the "spread-over" system precipitated the present crisis. Trade union leaders predicted that the federation would attempt to save its own face, but still avoid a national crisis, thus forestalling repeal of its veto, but postponing enforcement until the condition of the industry improves.

"The miners at present are not able to afford a strike," one high member of the Trade Union Congress told the United Press. "In the last five years the miners' union has lost more than 1,000,000 members. A national strike probably would prove disastrous to the union. The mine owners are not in a strong position, either, but they would be better able to face the consequences of a strike."

NEW PRISON TO BE FOUGHT BY V. F. W.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 4.—Proposed plans for the erection of a federal penitentiary on the site of Ft. McHenry, birthplace of the Star Spangled Banner and one of the outstanding historic shrines of the nation, will be bitterly opposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., according to a statement issued by Commander-in-Chief P. C. Wolman.

This statement is in line with an expression of the national council of administration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., the ruling body of the organization between national conventions when it convened recently at national headquarters in Kasas City.

"We already have too few national historic shrines," declared Commander-in-Chief Wolman and any move to destroy the traditions that surround Ft. McHenry would constitute an insult to the memory of those courageous patriots who repelled invading forces of the enemy when American liberty was at stake.

"The mere suggestion that Ft. McHenry should be torn down and a penal institution erected in its place is particularly repugnant to every patriotic American," the veteran leader emphasized.

"Ft. McHenry will always hold a significant place in American history as the spot where Francis Scott Key was inspired with the hymn that gave us the "Star Spangled Banner." Wolman continued. "This famous composition is generally accepted as our national anthem, and at its next session congress will be asked by the Veterans of Foreign Wars to give it that official designation by act of legislation.

"More than five mililon American citizens have affixed their names to petitions urging congress to act accordingly, and in so doing they simultaneously voiced their reverence and respect for the traditions that characterize the history of Ft. McHenry.

"Aside from its fame as the birthplace of Key's immortal composition, Ft. McHenry played a dominant role in a dominant role in America's victory over British forces in 1814 and in the protection of the city of Baltimore, recognized in that period as the nation's capital. In the preservation of Ft. McHenry for posterity, we are perpetuating not only an early fortress of American liberty but also the memory of those whose deeds are indelibly inscribed in the archives of American history."

LOST EXPLORER FEARED INDIAN CAPTIVE

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Dec. 4.—UP—That Col. George Fawcett, vanished explorer of the Brazilian jungle since 1925, is imprisoned somewhere along the border of the states of Matto Grosso and Goyez by a tribe of white Indians, is the opinion of St. Joao Leao de Albuquerque, Brazilian explorer, who for a quarter of a century has investigated the hinterland of Brazil.

Col. Fawcett, his son Jack and a young Californian disappeared into the unknown central part of South America five years ago while searching for vestiges of an ancient civilization, which they may or may not have found. Opinions vary greatly, and, while expeditions have been sent to search for the British explorer, none has succeeded in bringing back to civilization any definite information regarding his whereabouts.

Birth Predicted

Sr. Albuquerque says that many years ago Fawcett was told by a witch doctor of some Indian tribe that the city he searched for would be found by him many years later, in company with his son, who, added the magician, had just been born back in England. Upon returning to the homeland, Fawcett found there was a son, who had materialized according to the prediction.

In 1925 Col. Fawcett and his son were roaming the forests of Brazil in company with Jack's American friend. Current belief is that their native guides either deserted or were dismissed—to excite less suspicion on the part of hostile Indians—and that the three white men plunged in alone.

Wedding Hinted

The Brazilian explorer declares that an occasional vaporous hint indicates that there lives a tribe of white civilized "Indians" in a stronghold which is surrounded by a ring of precipitous mountains having one natural entrance. This entrance is jealously guarded. He adds that other rumors leak out from the interior, to the effect that the secrets of the region would only be disclosed to Fawcett if he obliged his son to marry one of the girls of the region.

Squeaky Bundle Starts Probe

INDIANOPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 4.—UP—A bulky package at the door of the Linday Furniture store, Indianapolis, "squealed" when a store employe placed his foot on it. With visions of a baby left on the doorstep, employes called police. Officers tenderly unwrapped the bundle and found only watermelon rinds inside. The rinds were so placed that, when pressed gently, they emitted a "squealing" sound.

RICHMOND LAND INVOLVED IN BIG SUIT

OAKLAND, Dec. 4.—The Oakland Central National bank will not keep its agreement to purchase $217,793.04 worth of real property in Richmond, if a suit now on file in superior court here is decided in its favor.

The bank in its suit before Superior Judge Frank M. Ogden asserts that the property it had agreed to purchase from Mills Building corporation was greatly inflated. A judgment to set aside the contract is sought in the suit.

In addition to the Mills Building corporation the suit names E. N. Tapscott, president and Howard Payne, secretary-treasurer of the concern.

The suit also contends that the defendants owe the plaintiffs a "large sum of money." As security for the money the suit alleges 361 shares of stock were deposited by the concern with the bank. These 361 shares represent 43 percent of the stock of the Mills Building corporation, it is claimed.

Tapscott and Payne also owe a controlling interest in the Berkeley Land company, the suit claims. It is alleged that on Sept. 16, 1929 the bank bought the Richmond property from the Berkeley Land concern for $216,793, which was in excess of the property's real value.

After the Mills stock had been surrendered to the bank as security stockholders voted to make it assessable, the suit claims, and $20 a share was levied against it. Money gained from this assessment was used to pay Tapscott, $10,000, it was alleged, although books of the Mills concern showed Tapscott owed the company $15,000.

SAD SONGS AND GAY SONGS

Deep in the heart of song you live
For me—and though I grow
Old and forgetful of days long gone,
It always will be so.

Songs with the tang of the salty sea,
Songs with the scent of a rose,
The sad songs, the gay songs
That everybody knows

Will always stir in me a chord,
And always will I see
You singing in the twilight—
As once you sang to me.

And always will I hear you,
Singing clear and high,
Sad old songs and gay old songs—
Songs to remember you by.

ESTHER VALCK GEORGNS.

Lo, the Poor Bachelor!

PITY the poor old bachelors—
don't be unkind to them!
That is the sympathetic and sensible reminder just given her sex
By one of its beloved and brilliant ornaments, Lady Nancy Astor.
Speaking at a London exhibition, Lady Nancy revealed herself
As the intelligent but unembittered feminist—
Pro-woman, but never anti-man—
The sort of feminist most thoughtful American women try to be.
"I don't like antis, anyway," explained Nancy,
"And while old bachelors are the most crochety creatures in the world,
"I hope women won't forget the loneliness of the bachelor man."
Really, you know, that's the sound feminine attitude to take
Toward the professional bachelor, who makes a lifelong career of it!
He is so much more bitter about women
Than any woman is or should be about him!
His crankiness, his crochets are nothing in the world but the workings of a defense mechanism,
A protective coloration, to conceal from the world at large—
Particularly the feminine half of it—
That, underneath, he's lonely and unloved and supremely conscious
Of having missed all that is best and richest in life.
The young bachelor, we admit, is sitting pretty—
Nowadays, at his club or small apartment, he can be as comfortable
As any of his married contemporaries—
In fact, he probably can treat himself to indulgences they cannot afford—
Better French cooking and silk socks—
He should worry, if he has to go without home-made stews and darns!
He can enjoy female society, when, as and if he wants it,
And the more often he varies it, the less likely he is to court responsibility—
Instead of merely a girl—
In numbers there is safety!
He is never asked to change his habits,
Nor to produce a timetable covering his absences,
Nor to make economies of money, sacrifices of personal inclinations, for the benefit of somebody else.
He is flatteringly petted and pursued—
Yet he has his freedom!
And a lot of good it does him, as he grows older.
He is free to drift about from one casual relationship to another,
With nobody to stand beside him, through thick and thin,
Nobody to make him take proper care of himself,
Nobody to persuade him to save money,
Nobody to nurse him when he is ill,
Nobody to listen to his glooming and grouching,
Nobody to share a lifetime of association, of memories sad and gay.
He is free of the bother and expense of a growing family,
But free also of its happy and humorous contacts,
Free of the pride in sons and daughters
Grown to attractive, and successful maturity.
Maybe he is even free to sink into failure and destitution—
The typical Bowery derelict, according to the New York Welfare Council, is an old bachelor.
And homeless men are perhaps the most helpless of the city's waifs and strays.
The self-made old bachelor, the man who has prided himself on "evading feminine wiles"—
As if he ever could, provided a wife female had wanted him badly enough—
Thackeray pointed out long ago, that any woman, unless she have a positive hump,
Can marry any man she pleases—
Well, then, this hardy perennial bachelor who, all along has been flattering himself
On his success in staying single—
What is he, in his old age, but life's most tragic outsider,
Who has lived always on the edge of real experience,
Until it's too late to change!
Nancy Astor is right—as usual.
The lonely old bachelor is more to be pitied than censured,
And doesn't he know it!—even if he won't admit it!

LINES TO LUCKY LADIES

Mary, all girls envy you—
You have wed a fellow who Understands that women can't
Be on time, and doesn't rant.

Elsie, there's no doubt of it—
Everything you buy's a fit;
Must be swell to have a shape
That makes all the men-folk gape.

Helen, you are fortunate
Your boy friend's importunate,
For, if one more year you tarry,
One might guess you'd never marry.

MARTIN PANZER.

JUST TELLING HIM

A recent news dispatch relates how Mrs. May E. Briest, motoring with her husband, spied and identified former State Senator James Hammond of New Jersey, a fugitive under indictment for embezzlement, and how Mrs. Briest had been voted a reward of $1,000 by the authorities. Mrs. Briest's husband, Clarence, is a detective. How many times in the next few months, do you suppose, he will have to listen to the gentle domestic reminder, "Now, Clarence, remember it pays to keep your eyes open!"

Care of the First Teeth

"WHY should I have teeth filled that the child will lose anyway?" exclaimed mother when advised to have her nine-year-old daughter's tooth filled.

This mother is making a serious mistake. When her attention was called to the fact that her child was suffering pain, she replied: "That is nothing. All children have toothache." Here she is again in error. The child whose temporary set of teeth receive prompt and proper attention never has toothache.

Furthermore, decaying teeth make it impossible to masticate the food properly and this is quite apt to start a serious intestinal disturbance. It frequently happens that decayed teeth cause infection to the glands of the neck.

Usually the child's sufferings make it necessary to extract the decayed teeth long before it should be removed and this prevents proper development of the permanent teeth and will interfere with the normal development of the jaw.

Many a face has been so distorted as to mar the looks of the growing child and all because mother could "see no sense in spending money on teeth that must come out anyway."

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 193

Autumn weather may demand hot, nourishing soups or casserole dishes for hungry children and active adults, but the home maker who spends most of the time indoors is more apt to prefer a vegetable salad or hot vegetable plate for luncheon.

Accompanying this main dish she may serve grilled open sandwiches of cheese, or anchovy toast, or dainty peanut butter sandwiches. Anchovy toast is best, for with a mild salad one wants something piquant, highly flavored and tempting. Something easy to prepare is also desirable.

KAREN HOLLIS

An unusual dainty suggested by one of the readers of this department has just been tried out on some of my friends and their reception of it was so enthusiastic that I believe you will want to try it too. It requires a little more time for preparation than the anchovy toast does, but the result is more than worth the effort.

These grilled, open-face sandwiches are best when made with large, plump sardines. And don't let the order to skin the sardines frighten you. It is really quite simple. Just insert a small, sharp knife under the skin at one end, tear off all the skin on one side, turn the sardine and repeat the process.

BROILED SARDINES ON TOAST

Select large sardines and carefully remove the skin. Sprinkle them with lemon juice and spread with the following mixture: Cream butter, allowing about one teaspoonful for each sardine, and blend with it prepared mustard, allowing one-half teaspoon for each sardine, and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce. Spread on sardines and then roll them in cracker meal. Broil under a hot flame for a minute or two, turn them over and brown. Serve on freshly-made, thin toast.

You and Your Corset--One and Inseparable

You Pay a Lot for the Sustaining Garment, but See What You Have Saved on Underclothing

By Ann Roberts

TWO EXAMPLES OF CORSETS THAT HELP THE FIGURE IN ITS FASHIONABLE WAY.

HOW about your waistline? Are you turning your attention that way? If you're not, you should, and in either event the chances are that you are baffled.

Today the well-dressed woman needs a corset specialist just as certainly as she needs a nerve or a stomach specialist when those parts of her anatomy go blooie.

Waistlines show plainly now in all types of clothes and, due to years of inattention and neglect, waistlines are bulgy—that is, generally speaking, and in all those who have passed their pristine youthfulness.

They can be subdued—pushed into place. But how? Consult your corset specialist or take time and study the thing out for yourself. Not every waistline responds to the same treatment.

The first thing you are going to say when you consult your specialist is, "How terribly expensive!" But there you will be wrong, for this is how the thing works out:

What do you buy by way of underclothing today?—a corset and but little else. Now when you take the sum total of what your underwear used to cost you and sink all that in the corset you will be all set. In other words, the all-important factor of your dressing now is the corset. Neglect that or do it sketchily and you just don't fit into your clothes, that's all.

INSETS OF RARE LACE GIVE THE FORM FITTING CORSET GRACE AND CHARM.

When the Girdle?

THEY tell me at Jay Thorpe's that girdles sell better than the form-fitting variety of corsets. This may be because we are used to girdles, for certainly the all-in-ones or the form-fitting sort are better adapted to figures that are in any way taking on weight.

But the girdles are built now with heightened waistlines which hug that roll around the waist and push it down or keep it from showing when the dress is in place.

Those that are most effective are made with bands of satin or brocade in the front or in the back with elastic insets in the sides.

The all-rubber girdles, remember, are only for the very thin—only to keep the flesh—even a very little flesh—from wobbling under a tightly fitting dress.

Now you can have lace petticoats attached and lace insets over the satin portions—all sorts of little innovations of this sort to dress them up and make them look too attractive for words. But the foundation element remains the same—not tight, but just confining enough to give your figure its 100 per cent perfect appearance.

Prices can go up into the hundreds depending upon the quality of the making, the lace and the trimmings. But the warning is, regardless of cost, to stick to one that you find to be satisfactory for you. Don't change about from one corset shaping to another. Just remember that the lines adopted—preferably prescribed by your chosen expert—will gradually mould your figure to fashion's desired curves much more certainly than will first one set of lines and a few months later yet another set.

As to Form Fitting

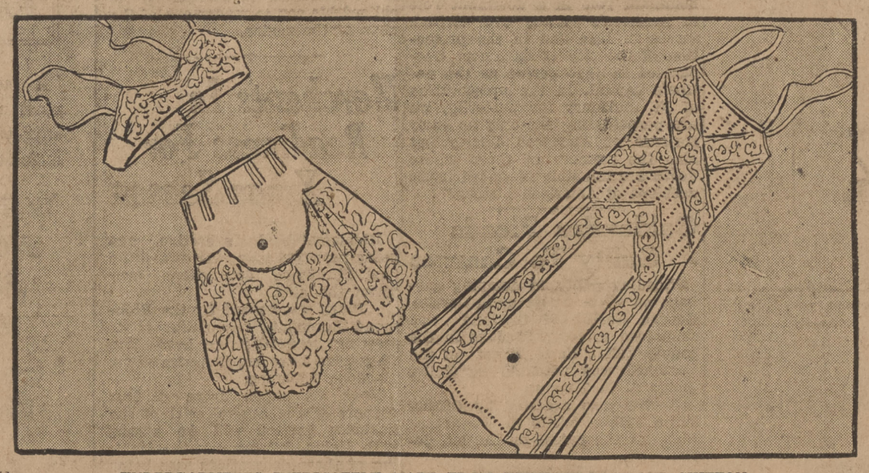
THE all-over corsets—almost, if not entirely boneless—are most satisfactory for figures that have lost some of that slenderness of youth. They seem to distribute the wider portions with a subtlety you could not trust until you have tried one of them. Even stomachs disappear under their flattering influence.

They are made with Alencon lace tops, with pink lace or flesh sometimes posed over white, which is very good looking, with pleats put in so that they gently mould the body, and insets of pointe torque lace running down the sides.

Under an evening gown one of these with its charming little lace petticoat attached need be the only undergarment.

For those who want panties there are chiffon ones trimmed with maline and lace and clusters of the daintiest finest tucks.

There are brassieres of all-over lace in finest quality meant to be worn with girdles by those who do not have to worry about too great a supply of flesh to be held in place. They have elastic for shoulder straps—elastic so thin and wraithlike that the naked eye finds it impossible to detect anything holding the brassiere in place.



UNDERGARMENTS INTRICATELY MADE FROM PRECIOUS LACE AND CHIFFON.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

And As a Woman Thinketh—so is her face! If we may paraphrase, with the utmost reverence, Holy Scripture.

So much of a beauty column's space is given to material things—the best way to shampoo oily hair, the newest lipstick, reducing exercises, diets for clearing the skin, a formula for making cleansing cream at home. But when you have learned the best way to shampoo the oily hair and are using the newest lipstick and practicing the reducing exercises and following the skin clearing diet, what have you if your thinking is hopeless and maybe a little bitter?

What have you? An unbeautiful expression of face and body and movement. Nor is that all. You have besides a simply tremendous obstacle to the success of the diet, the exercising, yes, even the shampoo and the cleansing cream!

Ask any modern-minded physician what the effects of anger and despair are upon the skin, the hair, the health. You can see for yourself what they do to the facial expression and the posture!

Did you know that the habit of pessimism makes the skin sallow? Would you believe that fits of irritation make oily hair doubly oily? You must know the lines that bitter thinking writes into the face.

One beauty specialist we know who is honest enough and fearless enough to amend all her beauty advice with this simple but powerful admonition, "Have faith." . . . This department has always regarded faith as the priceless ingredient in all beauty preparations, however excellent.

Indeed the beauty shop's idea of a superior system of beauty culture is one that begins with the mind. To have real beauty, a deeper than skin deep beauty, beauty must exist first in the consciousness, vitally. There must be a definite clear-cut image of beauty in the mind before it can be realized in the body.

So, think beauty, feel beauty, surround yourself with beauty, eat and drink of it—beauty in every form. Most important of all, believe in your own inherent beauty, know that you have a right to be beautiful, a duty to be beautiful. And with those thoughts imbedded deep in your consciousness, you will go out and work to be beautiful, and you must succeed, inevitably.

If wrong thinking, bad thinking muddled and bitter thinking can do such awful things to bodies and faces—and you can see that they do—then doesn't it follow logically that right thinking, beautiful thinking will reflect itself in an upright graceful figure and an attractive face—at least an attractive face?

The Pre-Christmas Clean-Up

NOW is the time to get the children to clean up the playroom in preparation for Santa's arrival and to supply space for the toys he will deliver. They will do this quite eagerly but it should be done under mother's supervision.

Mothers are teaching their children that Christmas is a joy-sharing celebration and under parental guidance they are selecting toys they have outgrown or no longer desire and passing them on to children less fortunate than themselves.

Perhaps Margy has two sets of dishes, so she gladly washes the one and packs it in a new box ready to present to the poor girl who does not mind if a plate or cup are missing. Buddy has a milk truck that looks impossible, but mother assures him a little hammering to even out dents and a coat of paint will make it look like new and delight the little fellow whose daddy is out of work and cannot buy toys this year. Sister is going to sacrifice one of her dolls. She must give her a good bath and get the snarls out of the hair and with mother's help make new clothes; but her face fairly glows when they speak of the joy this dolly is going to bring into another home of the unemployed.

These children have several busy weeks before them in making repairs and it is having a wonderful influence upon their characters. One lad is diligently polishing up a pair of rusty skates and painting a scooter he has outgrown, and he is thoroughly enjoying it.

They are not worrying about what Santa Claus is going to bring them. They are forgetting themselves because they are thinking of others. Has your child this fine Christmas spirit?

Cleaning Suggestions

You can cleanse your georgette or chiffon dress very nicely—just lay it out flat and sprinkle powdered ammonia over it. Roll it up tightly and leave until next day. Then shake gently but thoroughly and hang it in the air, but not in the sun, until wrinkles disappear.

Never use an oiled duster on a gilt or bronze frame. To clean, use a weak solution of ammonia and water and with a cloth moistened in this rub the frame gently. After a few minutes repeat the operation. Do not rub hard and dry by dabbing with a soft cloth.

Kitchen Helps

Rinsing the mixing bowl with boiling water before using it will expedite the creaming of the butter, sugar and eggs.

The bread that is too fresh to cut for sandwiches will be just right if placed in the refrigerator for an hour.
